

Enterprise Mindset

VITAL

A Leadership Series

Program Overview

The most valuable organizational leaders have an enterprise mindset—they break out of silos, value diverse input, and align their team's efforts with the company's vision and objectives. They recognize that it's not just about doing what's best for their department, but about fostering collaboration, innovation, and resilience across all levels of the business.

That's why this VITAL Enterprise Mindset workshop is designed to help leaders define their own leadership approach, build behaviors that drive enterprise-wide success, and overcome real-world challenges through practical strategies.

Inside the Course

This Enterprise Mindset course helps leaders connect their daily decisions to the organization's broader goals. Participants learn to define and assess their mindsets, explore key behaviors for fostering enterprise thinking, and practice aligning team actions with company strategy

Activities, like the "Flexi Launch Dilemma," challenge participants to weigh risks, discuss trade-offs, and find collaborative solutions that serve the business. Throughout, leaders are encouraged to share insights, consider cross-functional impacts, and ask, "How will this decision benefit the organization as a whole?" The course wraps up with reflection questions and practical pledges for future commitment.

VITAL Leadership

The VITAL leadership model has been designed to empower leaders by enhancing their left-brain cognitive abilities, enabling them to develop the skills and mindset needed to thrive in today's AI-empowered work environment.

VITAL stands for five essential components: Viewpoint (strategic thinking), Input (enterprise insight), Tinker (critical and creative thinking), Analyze (data-driven decision making), and Leverage (business acumen)

The VITAL leadership training series is presented through five virtual instructor-led training (VILT) experiences. Each module is designed to complement the other modules in the series but can also stand alone. These experiences provide leaders with the practical knowledge and skills necessary to excel in their roles and drive organizational success.
